Foreword

In compiling this book, we have tried to summarize our work of the past year in as true and original a manner as possible. It is intended to form for the classmates of 1937 a chapter from their own lives. For the alumni, we hope that it will bring them in closer touch with us and keep them still boys and girls at heart. To the public, we desire to show how we spend one year and to demonstrate in some measure the meaning of the spirit which binds us together.

Dedication

I T IS with a dual feeling of regret and appreciation that the 1937 CRYSTAL is dedicated to one who, in full control of his faculties and possessing a wealth of ability and experience, felt that after a long period of efficient and valuable service, he could no longer serve us as Chairman of the School Board. Regretting the loss, but appreciating the service he so cheerfully rendered, we affectionately dedicate this book to

Twenty Years After

I T IS the year 1957 and the class of '37 is just gathering for its first reunion inside the now ivy-covered walls of L. H. S. We are immediately attracted across the halls by that Hollywood box-office attraction, Bev Read, as ever surrounded by a mob of admiring "fems." Quietly watching him is one with a modest but very busy jaw, Hubert Beatty, president of a chewing-gum factory doing a booming business. There is one individual who is quite at home, Jimmy Cook, now a rising prof in his dear old high school. He seems to be busily discussing the latest fads in education with Carl Varner, president of Bridgewater College, and with "Bobby" Latture, head of an educational institution for women, the physical ed. director of which is Elenora Faison, who excels in teaching people how to keep from catching cold.

Various and sundry unions are well represented. The happiest seems to be smiling Ben Young Morris, head of the Soda Jerkers' Association. Syd Smith is in charge of the A-B-C Union. Aha! In addition, Mason Deaver is a huge success as president of a national radio concern. One of his announcers is Henry Kirkpatrick, who supplies, in addition to static, the latest reports on that powerful Central American dictator, Howard Brooke. To lessen the tension, we remember that Ned Burks has superseded Jack Benny, and Dick Smith is a second Ted Husing.

Fred Berry is busily explaining about his latest crop of alfalfa to John Swink, who is an old married man now, taking his milk, by the way, from Nuckols and Murray Dairy. Sue Dunlap is also married and has a cheery home with singing birds as a result of the persuasive sales talk of Charlie-boy Olsen, successful agent for the Contented Canary Cage Company. Nettie Agnor has got herself hitched, too, and Margaret Murray seems happy with her professional football player.

"A tinkling piano in the next apartment"—(yes, the same old piano but the cover is ragged) attracts our attention and we find Lucy Lee Morrison, accompanist for Major Bowes, playing Mary Virginia McCoy's latest composition for Gold Diggers of '57. Myra McCormick, efficient head librarian at the public library in Kalamazoo, is carrying on a literary conversation with "Sabie" Couper, whose cartoons in Esquire are a veritable national institution! Included in this group is Miriam Olsen, who writes columns in the paper on correct manners. She seems to be engrossed with accounts of "Pose" Fletcher's experiences teaching les français enfants to parler anglais, in France. Speaking of France reminded us of Casey Williams, an imposing diplomat there.

Marietta Hart spends all her weekends, and time in between, in Covington, but at the moment, she is fascinated by Bob Lemmon, standing in a chair on the stage, the millionth Charles Atlas quack. John Weathers has turned into a gigolo (in his spare time he gigs alone), and Geraldine Troutman is still looking for ten-acre fields.

It does our heart good to get together again to talk over old times and we resolve to do it again. We were so sorry to miss Pete Brugh, the state cop, but unfortunately he was busy keeping his eye on Bill Mackey, whose reckless abandon in manipulating his trucks is reported to be positively astounding.

Matt holds the door open for us. He looks not a day older than he used to. He is still wearing that old hat with great style.

Oh, Lexington, we're rooting for you;
And you've got to win this game.
Oh, Lexington, we're rooting for you
For the sake of Lexington's name.
Go down that field and make a touchdown
With that good old pep and fight,
And when this grand old game is over,
Lexington IIi will shine tonight.

Lexington team, Lexington team,
Take that ball right through.
Show old Bedford you can beat them;
Now it's up to yon.
Rah! Rah! Rah!
Lexington team, Lexington team,
Fight for all your fame.
Fight! fight! fight!
And we will win this game.

Football

John Swink
Hubert Beatty
R. H. Woodson

AT THE beginning of the season Coach Woodson was faced with the problem of teaching about twenty-five light and, for the most part, inexperienced boys the fundamentals and finer points of the game. Then he had to put eleven men on the field who could stand up against heavier teams. The starting eleven averaged only about one hundred and thirty-six or seven pounds.

The team opened the season with an impressive 15-7 victory over Central of Low Moor. The following week a strong Covington team pounded out a 25-0 victory, which was the only bad defeat of the season. The team lost a heart-breaker to Staunton, 6-0, and then dropped another game by the same score to a bigger Bedford team. In both of these games close scoring attempts were missed. The Radford game was canceled due to the condition of the field at Radford. The next week brought a victory over Hot Springs, 7-6. Yardage was made almost at will, but the eleven couldn't get the points for a larger score. An inspired Lexington team fought off a bigger and heavily favored Clifton Forge team for nearly four whole quarters, but weakened in the last five minutes to lose 14-0. Lexington won by forfeit from Buena Vista, who was forced to cancel the remainder of its schedule.

The players drew praise for their style of play which showed that good coaching had been absorbed, and they gained the reputation of being fighters.

Boys' Basket Ball, 1937

John Swink	Captain
CARL VARNER	Manager
R. H. Woodson	Coach

COACH Woodson and his high-ridin' Scarlet Hurricane cagers swept through a heavy twenty game schedule, winding up with fifteen victories. The boys offset a lack of height with a display of flashy ball handling and a good brand of basket ball. The season opened with a crushing 55-18 victory over Effinger. Glass Hi won a close decision, 32-17, but the team went on to whip Natural Bridge's county champions, 26-17, and then won over Virginia Episcopal School decisively, 35-26. The team hit its stride in the second game with Waynesboro and won ten straight victories. Captain Swink led his team-mates into an invasion of Richmond to defeat Ashland, 24-18. In the last game of a long tour, playing four games in five nights the team lost to Fredericksburg in two extra periods, 25-21. The team was then honored by an invitation to play in the South Atlantic Tournament to be held at Washington and Lee and the invitation was accepted.

Captain John Swink was presented a gold basket ball by the squad for his excellent leadership and playing.

Next year's team will be built around John Brown, Charles Swink, B. C. Tolley, Neely Young and Stuart Faison. With these boys back another good season seems to be ahead.

High point men for the season were: John Swink, with 163 points, and Dick Smith with 158.

THE CRYSTAL

Baseball

JOHN SWINK, Charles Swink, Dick Smith, Billy Goforth, Francis Hickman, John Brown, and Melvin Cauley are Monogram men ready to play this year. Practice began immediately after the South Atlantic Tournament. Coach Woodson needs catchers and another pitcher to team with John Swink and Dick Smith.

The following games have been scheduled: Jefferson Hi, Covington, Buena Vista, Clifton Forge, Virginia Episcopal School, and Glasgow. Other games will be added.

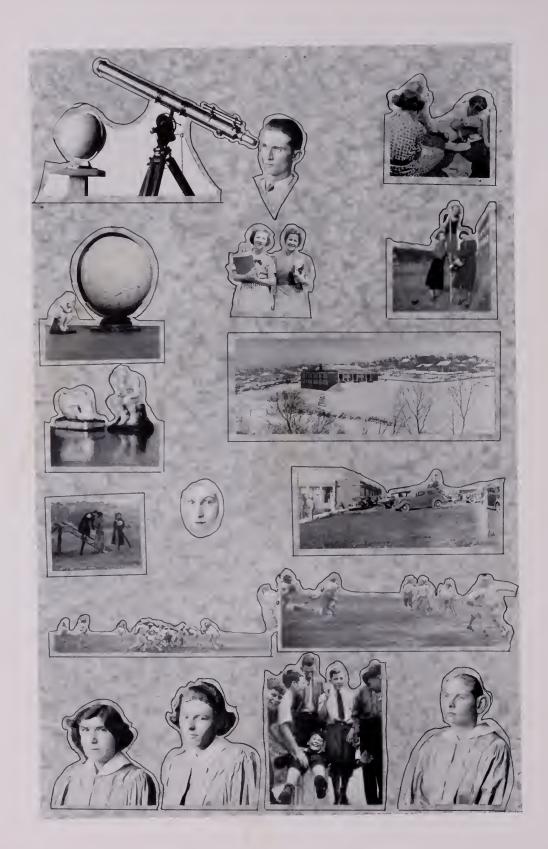

Girls' Basket Ball

"Student Government in Lexington High School continued to go forward this year after the development in the past years, the work of former Executive Committees. This year slight revisions were made in the Amendments to our Constitution in order to clarify certain points. Those who took part this year feel certain that our entire organization will be rounded into a more efficient unit by the students who will take part in the coming years."

The Assembly

O WE have assembly today?" School is saturated with the question, for it looks eagerly forward to that half hour period on various mornings when all eleven score or so of us fill the auditorium.

The first of a number of interesting outside speakers was Dr. Henry W. Duboise, a Presbyterian minister from South Carolina, with a delightful dialect. On October second he discussed the "four things" a man must do from a poem by Van Dyke:

"Think without confusion, clearly;
Love his fellow men, sincerely;
Act from honest motives, purely;
Trust in God and Heaven, securely."

The eighth of October, Mr. Thompson, by giving amazing statistics on fatalities and injuries resulting from automobile wrecks, startled us into a realization of the necessity for safer driving. Optimistically, he concluded: "And I hope you'll live a long time."

Mr. Forest Fletcher talked of his trip to the Olympic Games last summer: what really happened to a certain member of the women's team who refused to keep training; details on the way things are being run in Germany; and a fascinating personal interview with Count Felix von Lucknor, "the most romantic figure of the World War."

November tenth Mr. R. N. Latture explained clearly to us in one short period the objectives, principles, and policies of socialism, communism, and fascism. In closing he pointed out the many advantages of our kind of democracy.

Following this, on the twenty-fourth, Dr. J. J. Murray, who annually brings bird lore of real interest to the students, explained how bird songs are recorded, and played records from his valuable collection.

Early in December, Dr. Cole, lecturer from Australia, gave the student body a vivid picture of his native land, which, it is to be feared, many of us think of as a vast wasteland full of cannibals and kangaroos.

Just before the Christmas holidays the boys' civics class presented an assembly in the form of a "man-in-the-street" radio broadcast, a realistic atmosphere being produced by the electrically wired microphone. At intervals a representative for the "sponsor," the CRYSTAL store, advertised with great gusto.

Between February nineteenth and March ninth, there were five more outstanding assemblies: first, a heated debate between Washington and Lee and University of Virginia on maximum hours and minimum wages being controlled by Congress; second, Mr. William Hinton's encouragement upon the subject of work; third, an inspiring talk by Dr. McKee, a missionary to the Belgian Congo (we came away eager to depart at once for service in Africa); fourth, a dramatization of three scenes from Silas Marner by the Sophomore English Class; and last, a talk on the town water supply by Mr. Hugh Rice.

These half hours have, and certainly will continue, to bring us a wealth of entertainment and a broader understanding of the world today.

Lexington High School Observes Library Week

Library Committee Presents Attractive Display

LEXINGTON, November 16-20, 1936 (CP).—The Lexington High School Library Committee, under the able supervision of Mrs. Boykin, prepared, and yesterday opened to the public, an exhibit which is drawing many spectators from the town, as well as an enthusiastic student body.

The theme about which the exhibition is built is progress and growth, and this idea has been rather cleverly developed through the medium of an amusement park or fair, complete with all its gadgets for enlightening the mind and enlivening the spirits. Tickets are sold in the form of ballots, to be cast in the contest to elect the most popular book. The gaiety of the "county fair" is emphasized by the red ribbon streamers given out at the gate. The rooms are hung with many-colored permants and balloons.

On the first table is a display of small dolls in various poses studiously perusing books of Mother Goose Rhymes. On the adjoining table an airplane from Charles A. Lindbergh's We has made a forced landing by the ferris wheel. Characters from Little Women, Understood Betsy, Laughing Lad, and other widely read novels fill the seats of the wheel. For those who yearn to "know all the answers," an Information Booth has been erected, backed by sturdy encyclopedias and dictionaries. The next representation traces transportation through its many stages from walking to travel by air. Miniature sandals, the rickshaw, carriage, wagon, canoe, steamboat, and airplane are arranged to show the development the world has made in methods of conveyance. Among the large, beautifully bound volumes the Library has recently acquired are Scott's Quentin Durward and Ivanhoe, Charles Read's The Cloister and the Hearth, Margaret Mitchell's Gone With the Wind, and Hervy Allen's Anthony Adverse. The merry-go-round features The Dual of Queens, The House of Exile, So Red the Rose and other well-known books. Dolls, cleverly costumed to depict the principal characters, stand in little compartments on the revolving wheel with a tinkling music box hidden underneath. A colonial estate illustrates progress in building the home, and books about foreign lands compose the international group. Finally, a scientific display presents specimens of rock, books of biological experiment, medical progress, and other intriguing features, climaxed with the electrical exhibit by the physics department, which fascinated visitors.

In every respect, this praiseworthy effort of the Library Staff promises to be a success, for it has been enthusiastically endorsed by the high school students and the community. Many guests are expected to visit it before the week is over.

THE LIBRARY EXHIBIT

1936-1937 From Room Thirteen

SEPTEMBER. Freshmen seem younger and smaller than ever this year...imagine our filling the Senior seats in Assembly...Football season opens.

OCTOBER. Fred Baker is on crutches...Mrs. Boykin has foiled the football team, we find, as first reports appear...L. H. S. has its first fire drill...Hubert Beatty is the best "gum-clicker" we've found so far...Henry Engleman is on crutches...Ned Burks and Howard Brooke are taking a straw-vote of the school: Roosevelt 157, Landon 96, Thomas 3, and others sparcely represented.

November. Beverly Read is in a daze...last week-end must have been too much for him...can it be Portsmouth...Fred Baker is off crutches...first Monogram Dance goes over big...football season closes...Library Week is in full swing and everyone is enjoying the display...the staff is running around in costume...S. I. P. A. meetings attended by L. H. S. representatives...big hopes of '37 CRYSTAL...between bells Doodles Murray and Lois Reynolds are belles of the halls...chewing gum is taking the school by storm...Solid Geometry Class is bringing in queerly shaped figures...El'nora Faison is having the stairs cleared for her these days...nice work Jimmy Cook... Thanksgiving Holidays, bless the Pilgrims...

DECEMBER. We always have to look twice to see if it is Jimmy Cook or Mr. Woodson...Mr. Charles Glasgow awarded monograms in assembly...that monograms signify sportsmanship is a "good point"...Mrs. Ramey is reorganizing the Glee Club... the boys are turning out well...Maggie Belle Wiltshire, Pat Fletcher, Ann Read, Evelyn Engleman and Martha Hinty are best to look at these days...Christmas is approaching...carols in foreign languages are drifting through class doors into the halls ...alumni are returning...they are looking enviously at us...sometimes we wonder... Christmas Vacation, we are here...

JANUARY. Can't seem to get back to studying...no more "good will toward men" feeling...reviews and exams are upon us...that inevitable question "How did you do?" ...Miss Moore is absent...Mrs. Davidson is substituting...first subscriptions on CRYSTAL sold...reports late...

February. During recess news of New Theater burning down is received... "the bugs" finally got Mr. Thompson...he has grippe...Miss Moore returns...Hall of Fame elections...what an assembly...Crystal contest opens...Freshmen Elections under new amendment...Jack Benny played the "Bee" last night...basket ball is successful...already it has won ten straight games...we think we're good, too...

March. Work is flying ahead on the Crystal...we hope...Miss Sieg's Sophomore English had quite a program...based on Silas Marner...the winners of the "screen test" goes to Hollywood to see Simone Simon and Robert Taylor...the cast was outstanding because everyone was chewing gum...Mr. Waddell has stated that girls chew as much as the boys...once every second...we have a pep assembly today...the basket ball team is in the South Atlantic Tournament...are we proud...plans are going ahead on the "stunt night"...the event is yet unnamed...the faculty is to be imitated ...we suggest with Miss Elliott that they be all referred to as good sports...Bev Read is wild over Alice Faye...our Glee Club is going to Richmond...baseball practice is in progress...the new road being constructed on the west side of school is fun to watch... and So To Press.

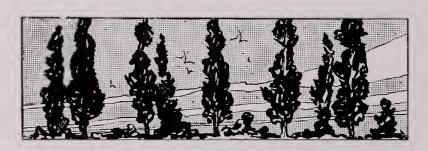

Twilight

The blazing sun sinks low behind the hills
And leaves the landscape sombre with a fading fire,
As youth does when it quits the old and fills
Tired minds with memories. A lake—sapphire,
Sparkling—reflects the last rays of light
And shadows deepen with approach of night.

The peace of twilight soothes me like a fragile flower; Still, it must pass when night arrives, as you and I When youth is gone; twilight is my perfect hour, And youth, my perfect age. In life Eternal, by and by, In the grace of God, in the glory of the skies; Bright youth will come again, the bright sun will rise.

RICHARD SMITH, '37.

A Page from My Journal

M ONDAY, April 5, 1937. Spring holiday! And luck would have it that I was in Lexington, the night of April 2, when a variety show "U-Name-It" was in progress at Lexington High School.

There was Elenora Faison with all the mannerisms of one, a venerable history teacher, telling experience after experience of former days; and Bob Lemmon, lumbering in to teach geometry to "dumb-owls" and "flat-heads," boasting lustily because he has taught thirteen years without "the bug" catching him. In civics class, Fred Berry sat mildly by enduring a variety of current events—everything from Hollywood to Winchell—when suddenly Henry Taylor appears to suggest a "little project that will be good practice for the boys."

In assembly, an announcement was made by the athletic head, who "truer than fiction" still closed his eyes and pulled his ear. (Incidentally, we understand his chair fell over backwards with him yesterday!) Stuart Faison portrayed the part of this "professor."

Louise Bradley's foreign words and dainty gestures indicated clearly that the person "on the spot" was none other than the French teacher.

A study hall under a very energetic soul with a "twangy" pronunciation, played by Mary Morrison, was interrupted by a fast-talking librarian (Ella Banks Weathers), and a teacher who continually complained of the "coolness" of the commercial classroom. This icicle was Edythe Alphin, of the business class.

Ann Read's spectacle lifting and continual "get out a clean sheet of paper" was, of course, our English teacher.

Edith McKemy could never have been better, her nervous gesticulations and regular "pencil workouts" indicated beyond doubt our Latin teacher.

Ned Burks, "delightful school wit," was the master of ceremonies; and the acts consisted of magic, dancing, and some grammar grade performers. Elsie Donald, Pete Agnor, Mary Desha and Dick Smith were the actors in a skit from Othello.

Altogether, the entire show was splendid.

Jokes

STUART SMITH TO LEWIS TYREE: "I had a little scare last night. The doctor said my aunt had kicked the bucket, but I reckon she only turned a little pale."

RAYMOND RULEY: "Say, Neely, when can I expect that quarter you owe me?"

NEELY YOUNG: "Always."

SUNSHINE: "Why do you call your goat 'Nearly'?"

ANN: "Because it is all butt."

MISS SIEG: "Ned, what is a metaphor?"

NED: "To keep cows in."

DAN McNeil: "What does 'they also serve who only stand and wait' mean?"

J. Swink: "A cafeteria."

Willie found some dynamite
He didn't understand it quite
Curiosity never pays
It rained Willie for seventeen days.

DICK NUCKOLS: "Are you dining out anywhere, tonight?"

Frances Murray (hopefully): "No, I'm not."

DICK: "My, you'll be hungry by morning."

MR. THOMPSON SAYS:

- (1) "Mathematics makes gristle in your brain."
- (2) "Plane geometry is the greatest English class in the world."
- (3) "Most of you set around and wait for June to come."
- (4) "Catching is before hanging and hanging precedes death."
